Interesting Gossip About the Teemer-Gaudaur Boat Race.

THE SCULLERS' STYLES COMPARED

Some Particular Remarks About the St. Louis Champion.

EVERYTHING READY FOR THEIR RACE | President Harrison might be present served

On Friday next the sculling match between John Teemer and J. G. Gaudaur, for $1,000 a side, will take place over the McKeesport course. The stakes are up, and it is left to The Disparch to select a referee, or for the sporting editor of this paper to act himself. The race is straight away, and the distance to be rowed will be about four miles. The race is undoubtedly creating considerable letters. undoubtedly creating considerable interest throughout Western Pennsylvania, and, according to present intentions, excursion trains cording to present intentions, excursion trains are to be run from various places in Eastern ore to be run from various places in Eastern Tripoli and her commander and crew taken Ohio to McKeesport the day of the race. "I certainly think that a straight-away race is the best for everybody. I know it suits me best, as I claim that turning a stake boat breaks a man all up. He gets out of his stroke and has to almost stop, and it domands a very great effort to get speed on the boat again.

Frick Coke Company having made the Fidelity Title and Trust Company its trus-tee to secure an issue of bonds to the amount of $2,500,000. Of this amount about $1,000,000 have already been placed in Pittsburg. The remainder of the loan, $1,-500,000, is for sale by the Fidelity company. The bonds bear 5 per cent interest and run 30 years.

Heretofore it has been the custom in large deals of this kind to apply to Eastern trust companies. It is agreeable to note that this is no longer necessary, nor in any way excusable, as there are home institutions of sufficient standing to attend to any business of a financial nature, no matter how great the amount involved.

The success attending the placing of this large loan is quite a triumph for Pittsburg. showing, as it does, that she is fully competent to manage her own affairs without outside help, and, if need be, to lend a helping hand to her sister cities in time of need. It is to be hoped that this transaction will open the way to others of equal or even greater importance.

The summer is ended. What of the harvest? The summer is ended. What of the narvest?
Those who read Bradstreef's and R. G. Dun & Co.'s reports, which appeared in THE Disparch yesterday, found an answer to the question. The labors of the husbandman have been munificently rewarded. With unstinted liberality the generous soil has responded to all demands made upon it. Large crops assure an abundance of food, at reasonable prices. Famine may stalk forth in other lands, but it is impossible here. This country has plenty, and to spare.

Agriculture lies at the foundation of all business. When it prospers everything else flour-ishes. When it languishes every other industry is depressed. The merchant and the manufacturer are as much interested in the crops as the farmer, and arrange their business and calculate profit or loss, activity or idleness, ac. cording as they are large or small. The prosperity of a nation is to be judged by the produce of its soil rather than by the number of its manufactories. Agriculture is subordinate to no industry that is prosecuted by man. With-out it he would soon return to barbarism, subsisting by the chase,

The prospect of good crops sustained busi ness throughout the summer in the face of a number of important failures and wide-reaching labor troubles, which, under other conditions, would have precipitated a panic, and the reality gives assurance of a prosperous fall and winter trade, under the stimulus of which the dawnings of a revival are already seen and felt.

Pittsburg is fortunate among cities. She is almost self-sustaining. Being a creditor, there is a steady stream of money flowing into her lap, to be used in the expansion of local business. What she has is her own, to do with it as she elects. This gives her standing in the financial world, and is a certain guarantee against reverses. A crash that would shake Pittsburg would leave very little standing of any other city in the Union.

And so, under highly favorable conditions,

The Wall Street News says: "It is quite natural that there should be a great deal of interest taken in the shipments of gold from Australia to San Francisco, and the first inference to be drawn is that the difference in the rate of insurance and the question of time are alone concerned. From Australia to London by sea is a long journey with appropriate chances for of insurance and the question of time are alone concerned. From Australia to London by sea is a long journey, with appropriate chances for accident and loss. From Australia to San Francisco is a voyage of only 25 days, and the insurance from there to London very much less, to say nothing of the saving of time. But the chances are that this is not a solid shipment—that is, the gold does not go through like a package of tea. Australia is usually an exporter of wheat.

This year a considerable portion of the surplus crop of California will go to Australia instead of Liverpool, and the trade will naturally bring money to the Pacific coast. We should not be at all surprised to see Australian gold shipments diverted to San Francisco instead of London as a point of destination, and not morely as a matter of convenience in the way of reaching London.

"It may not seem," said Mr. McGrew,

"I can hardly say when it began," he continued, "but I commenced to actice it years age. It was chiefly in my head at first. There would be an aching feeling as forehead, just over the eyes. My nostrils would be elogged up, first one and then the other.

"After a time the trouble seemed to extend to my eyes and ears. My sight became dim. My eyes would fill with water and become so weak and inflamed that I could hardly see to read. If I would overtax them in the least by reading they would ache and pain me so that I could hardly bear it. Sounds like ringing and busing would come in my ears and I could see that my hearing was being affected.

"As the trouble extended my throat became very seriously involved. I would catch cold on the slightest provocation. My throat would feel raw and inflamed and sometimes would get so sore that it would be hard for me to swallow. In spite of everything I could do the trouble kept getting a stronger hold upon me.

"I had to be continually hawking and raising to clear my throat. Something would seem to stick there that I could not get up or down. I could feel the mucus dropping back, and sometimes I would have choking and coughing spells that would leave me feeling miserable.

"My stomach became very much deranged. There would be a feeling of discomfort and nausea after eating, and what I did eat seemed to lic there like a load or wight. Frequently I would sit down to the table feeling very hungry. Then I could only eat a few mouthfuls. The sight or smell of food seemed to take away my appetits.

Willard McGrew, 15 Sheft eld St., Allegheny

"In later years there would be a dry, fever-ish kind of feeling in my throat. Sharp shooting pains would take me in the chest, running through to the shoulder blades. An aching feeling, more like a horrible sensa-tion of weakness than anything else, would come in the small of my back.

"Dizzy spells would come over me frequently, accompanied by palpit heart. This would sometimes leave me weak and faint. My sleep did not seem to refresh me and I would get up in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed refersh me and I would get up in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed at night.

"Night sweats came on and wakened me terribly. I would have feverish spela, followed by a cold, chilly sensation. I tried many physicians, but in spite of everything I could do, I grew steadily weaker and worse, losing flesh all the time.

"When I went to Dra Copeland & Hlair the night sweats were increasing in frequency, and I was growing weaker rapidly. Although they did not make any marvelous promises. I felt that they would cure me. I improved steadily from the start under their treatment. My throat became well. The night sweats disappeared. I gained back my lost weight and strongth. The pains in the chest, and the weak, aching feeling in the small of my back passed away. I slept well, eat well and felt well. I am strong and well now, quite like another person from what I was when I first went to Dra Copeland and Hair."

Mr. Willard McGrew, who makes this statement, is a well-known millwright and builder living at No. 15 Sheffield street, Allegheny City.

In stating her case by letter just previous to the date above mentioned she complained of terrible headaches, followed by spells of vomiting, which would compel her to lie in bed for 24 hours, after which she would be complately worn out. Sharp pain in the breast, extending through to the shoulder biades, and followed by others in her stomach and side.

On June 9 she wrote: "Your medicine is doing me good, Ido not feel so tired, and my head has only ached twice, and that was caused by a fresh cold I caught."

The writer saw both contestants row over the course on Friday. The course is an excellent one, and Gaudaur likes it extremely well. He probably never looked in better condition in his life, which reflects great credit on his trainer, Al. Hamm. He is not a fast striker, as on Friday he never seemed to exceed about 31 to the minute. But Gaudaur seems to have changed his style somewhat since he last rowed here. When he sculled over the McKeesport course he had about as long a reach forward as one could expect to see and he unlied his scull through the water the Rockies. The Indians of the Northwest have a legend to account for this. Many moons ago, they say, some Indians were hunting buffalo on the other side of the range—they were plentiful over there see and he pulled his scull through the water with remarkable power and accomplishment, finishing well back. On Friday, however, he didn't get near so far forward and finished his then. An old medicine man told them where to find a big herd which, he said, was ever, the race promises to be a terrific one for one or two miles and then stamina will tell the one or two miles and then standing will tell the tale.

So far the betting on the race has not been beavy, as almost all the local money is for Termer. The two scullers are old opponents, and are both ex-champions. Gaudaur won the championship from Teemer in 1885, and a year later the former retained the title by defeating Hanlan. The latter subsequently regained the title by defeating Gaudaur, and then Teemer took the laurels from Hanlan. Gaudaur then had another try for the title arainst Teemer, but the latter was victorious. These records show that Gaudaur is a dangerous man for anybody to tackle.

fractionally higher in most cases to-night, the coal stocks furnished the only marked changes in quotations, and they were in the direction of lower figures. Tennessee coal made a sharp slump, dropping from 48½c to 48½c, and only a portion of this drop was recovered.

The pressure at the opening met with a good demand for stocks, and the temper of the market was soon changed for the better, and while Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and St. Louis was specially wask, dropping from 75c last evening to 73%c, the losses in the others were confined to small fractions. The reaction, however, was sharp and a full and complete recovery took place, even Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and St. Louis going back to its first figure. The rise was led by Rock Island, which rose to $1.04%, followed by Louisville and Nashville, which was the only one of the Southern stocks to get any attention outside of Richmond and West Point, while Missouri Pacific, Atcheson and Wabash preferred were close behind. The last named stock was unusually active and strong. The market quieted down toward III o'clock, and small reactions took place, but the issue of the bank statement with its marked increase in the surplus reserve started anew the builish feeling, and many stocks reached still higher prices than during the first hour. The close was active and strong at the best prices reached.

Rallroad bonds were also fairly active to-day, the sales of all issues for the two hours' session reaching $66,000. There was no special activity except in the Ohio Southern incomes, which furnished $85,000 to the total. The market was in close sympathy with the trading in stocks and a decidedly strong feeling prevailed which furnished $85,000 to the total. CHICAGO-In the speculative branch of the wheat trade to-day there was a continuation of pesterday's weakness, prices showing further depreciation. News was in the main bearish, and so was local sentiment. The most important piece of news was a dispatch from Migne-apolis saying that owing to the failure of all but four elevators in that city to comply with the new law and thus become regular, 1,000,000 bushels of wheat will disappear from the stocks there in the next report. Next in imortance as a bear factor was the report that portance as a pear lactor was the report that the Kansas Board of Agriculture estimating the crop of that State at 35,000,000 bushels, or 19,000,000 bushels in excess of the yield of 1888. Selling orders from the Northwest were re-ceived.
